Dear "The Taint" or whoever sent me this email:

What a hopeless coward you are.

If you want to send things like your email that require deception and deceit to even persuade me to read your ravings, don't be such a chicken by sending it anonymously.

Be a man, or woman as the case may be, and stand behind what you write and post on the internet. Have the nerve to let me know who you are and how to contact you directly and I will do that. Otherwise, the only possible conclusion is that you're a silly little person, or group of persons, too frightened to admit who you are.

"The Taint." Phew, now that's clever!

I look forward to your speedy response with actual names and contact information.

Terry Hancock
